Wondering Questions for the Journey

The Faith of the Nomads February 8, 2026

- What Voice of promise have I been ignoring because I am afraid to lose what I already have... to trust in what we don't yet see?
- Now that I have stepped out in faith, where am I still trying to force the outcome instead of trusting the One who gave the promise?
- Am I just imitating the traditions of those before me, or am I trusting God for the fresh water I need today?
- In this season of my journey, am I pioneering, persevering, or prevailing in struggle? Am I already walking with a limp because I finally know who I am in Him?
- When the weight of the bricks makes the stars seem invisible, will I trust that the promise is still shining in the silence?

The Fire of the Fugitives February 15, 2026

- Where have you quietly accepted, "This is just how life is," because the "palace fire" of the world seems so much brighter than your own small spark? What story formed your identity before you ever knew you had a choice?
- Where in your life is a "fire" currently burning? Is it a fire of stress or fear that consumes you... or is it the fire of God's Presence that frees and empowers you? How might you allow yourself to become a "burning bush"... carrying an inner fire that illuminates your path without burning you out?
- What old "gods" or systems of security in your life are currently being dismantled? How are you responding?
- Standing on the threshold, what might it look like for you to stop "hedging your bets" with your old life and step into a total commitment to God's new direction, even while the darkness still feels heavy outside?
- Ask yourself, Who am I now, or who might I become, because I choose to walk through the wilderness of transformation? Who are we now... and who might we become... if we continue to be transformed in relationship with our God and each other?
- Where are you in this grand process? If you are standing on the threshold of a new thing God is doing... are you willing to stretch your wings and fly into the unknown?

The Songs of the Wayfarers

February 22, 2026

- Who are you traveling with right now? Have you ever found that your differences with others faded away when you were focused on the same destination?
- In what ways have you drifted into an isolated faith? Have you forgotten who you... and others... truly are?
- What would it look like for you to "dance" before God, letting go of the need to look dignified or "composed"?
- What "mountain" are you climbing, and what song is keeping your stride? What does it sound like when your soul finds its "true pitch" in the presence of God?
- What "walls" have you built that might be muffling the Great Song in your life? What would it feel like to realize that He chooses to sing his song within you?
- What comfortable distractions is God inviting you to strip away so you can more clearly hear His song and step into the abundant life He has promised you?

The Longing of the Watchers

March 1, 2026

- Where have you experienced the slow dimming of something you once trusted? When has your faith felt less like certainty... and more like calling into silence?
- What might it be like to stop being polite in your relationship with God... and be gut-level honest like the prophets were?
- What has burned in your life... that once felt permanent? How do you sing when the music has gone quiet? What does faithfulness look like when the Temple you trusted is no longer standing?
- Where are you tempted to rush what only God can do? Where are you living "home but not yet whole"? How might waiting be shaping you, rather than stalling you?
- Where do you feel like a captive at home? Is the longing hardening... or softening... you? How has waiting shaped you?
- Will we choose to become Watchers?
